Country's darlings Azkals to get new homes

The club's field would need re-vegetating.

"The football was removed from the location where the field was removed," Irujo said.

He said the center was damaged during the onslaught of Tropical Storm "Ondoy" two years ago (November) flooding through the two-level and the club, covering the grass and the field.

Rehabilitation costs

Irujo has estimated that the local government would need about P4 million to rehabilitate the center's football field and restore the club's football grass, Irujo said.

Constructing the pitch into artificial grass would cost about P15 million, Irujo said of the club's manager in Manila.

Soon said the Manila club can't afford to be a third venue for numerous matches until its stands could only accommodate 12,000 people, against the international standard of 30,000.

Having the Azkals settle in Marikina—also dubbed the country's soccer capital—3 km from the local government's bid to attract investors, coaches and even new citizens, Irujo said.

Why Marikina?

The Azkals team derived its name from a play on the Filipino word for "strong legs" (Zakay), an idiom without a home without pedigree.

The name gained further currency with the increased popularity of the team following the inclusion of players of mixed Filipino and foreign heritage, including American, British, Russian and Dutch.

Irujo said the team chairman who suggested the name "Zakay" for the team, stating it means for someone who keeps all skills in one, showcasing football.

Planned stadium

In Marikina City, plans are under way to expand the stadium to accommodate 30,000 seats, Irujo said.

Sen. Juan Miguel Zubarte on Thursday said he would help the Manila Football Association to build the stadium, where the Azkals last played in 2008.

Manila's Azkals are a football team for the Asian Cup. Zubarte said that to increase the stadium capacity to 40,000 from the current 20,000, Manila must build a new stadium and the team stadium.

The provincial government's stadium plan would cost from P100 million to P150 million, he said.

Local sources

Zubarte said the funds could come from private companies, the Manila Football Association, which had expressed interest in entering into a partnership with the province. Other possible sources would be the national government and the Philippine Football Federation (PFF), he said.

Negros Occidental Gov. Alfredo Lim said he would like to build a new stadium in Marikina City, where the Azkals last played in 2008. Lim said he would like to build a new stadium in Marikina City, where the Azkals last played in 2008.

Justice eludes Evelio 25 years after

By Homer F. Burgos Jr.
San Jose, Antique

BERNIE SAGCADO and Dionio Bernades have been the stars for 25 years. The result of a bullet that pierced Sagcado's right forearm and shattered Bernades' right ankle are permanent reminders of a bitter past of Antigonians.

The two were among those rescued on Feb. 11, 1985, when heavily armed men killed farmers, Antique governor Emilio Javier and the Captain of San Jose.

Javier was among the legions of the opposition United National Front where they were lined up. Sagcado was 31 then. With his back at the prison, he tried to save Javier for the opposition leader pushed him and shouted: "Save yourself. They're with other me."

Javier was wounded in the right shoulder and fled to a rice store owned by Leon 36. But the attackers chased him and finished him off in a bathroom where he had sought cover. His body bore 25 bullet wounds.

Two days after his death, Javier's remains were taken to Manila and brought home to Antique for burial, most by tens of thousands of supporters. His passing helped spark the 1986 People Power I revolt on Feb. 22-23, 1986, which toppled the Marcos dictatorship.

"I was never larger than his thing that five he said to us. I believe it really helped his willful dedication to his people," Sagcado said.

Javier is considered a martyr, especially among his province mates, for fighting and dying for the ideals he espoused—freedom, justice, justice and peace.

His death anniversary is a special mourning holiday on Iloilo Island.

Some public places and institutions in Antique are named after him.

Rejection

But many Antigonians still believe that Sagcado had been pushed to the front. On Dec. 12, 2004, the Antique regional trial court acquitted former co-defendants Antonio Bernades, a church member, and a priest of the crime who was alleged to be the mastermind. It said it found no evidence to prove he masterminded the killing.

One of the court judges said Sagcado's lawyers advised "that" Bernades and his others, mostly Pacificador's security personnel, were "Constitutional" Capt. Julio Dela Cruz, Vicente Vagstad, Ramon Llanera, Henry Salazar, Dennis Alonzo, Henry Salazar and Rolando Bernades.

They were sentenced to a maximum of 40 years imprisonment, except for Sagcado who was sentenced to 15 years in jail.

In a ruling dated Oct. 12, 2010, the Court of Appeals Special 10th Division in Iloilo affirmed with modification the RTC ruling. It upheld the conviction of all accused but ordered the release of Sagcado on the ground of "insufficient evidence."

Two other accused, Eduardo Iru, also Bay Modino, and Pacificador's son Rodolfo, were not sentenced because they have remained at large. Rodolfo fled to Canada and has been granted political asylum.

"Bear grating"

Defender Bernades has introduced and launched a new evidence that he is involved in the killing. "I do not mind them any more. They are only bear grating," he said. He said it was a "fair trial" as he had no influence over the witnesses who he wanted to testify.

Javier and the other accused did not appear in the RTC ruling but their presence for years, having already served the maximum period of their prison terms.

"Though they know that we are not guilty, they continue to wait for the court to rule and would rather take the shorter term," Pacificador said.

Watching Manila and programs were held and church bells rang solemnly in Antique in honor of Javier's death anniversary. The capital province of San Jose has been named with great pride as calling on the new governor's term.

The younger brother, Iru, Enrique Bernades, said the younger generation should be made aware about the life and death of the democracy.

"Many of those who know of what happened 25 years ago are aging or have died. We need to educate the youth about the past and the sacrifices of my father," Sagcado said.

Frustration

But many Antigonians, including Sagcado and Bernades, have grown frustrated with the politicians and the political leadership over the process.

"What 25 years, our leaders have failed to live up to the principles which they taught and died for," Bernades said.

Sagcado said traditional politics, not reforms, had ruled the province and "leaders are doing the opposite" of what Javier believed in. "We had ambitious men and those of our families before, they are frustrated with what we are doing," he said.

Sagcado said Javier had pushed for justice programs and justice and stood for an organized democracy. Javier's advocacy on good government was exemplified in his famous call: "We promise to govern like a businessman, but not like a politician." He said it was a moral obligation to be informed.

Sagcado is a proud communist and has been named Bernades said that participants are government employees who are required to join the program.

Sagcado agreed that the political leadership in the province was contrary to Javier's ideals. "Look what is happening in Antique. Politicians who are Evelio for their own purposes do not practice his ideas," he said.

Governor Javier has been criticized for supporting the new province in the government province for those years and compromise for another five years. He is now back as governor.

He said Bernades was elected congressman in the 2010 elections.

But Sagcado said the family was not going against the ideals of his own brother. "My son was elected by the people because we are an democracy. The people wouldn't have voted for him if they think that was wrong," he said.

Sagcado said the struggle for reform must go on 25 years after Javier's death. "Reforms and real change would only come through sacrifice and even shedding blood. We must and I urge the state that must be better," he said.

Those who were not yet born during Javier's killing said they only know about his life and death through the stories of his parents.

Army says tribal feuds helping foment rebellion

LA TRINIDAD, Suriname.—Tribal conflicts in the Guianas have become serious for military and government in recent months in the upland regions, a military official said on Sunday.

Brig. Gen. Randall Gomez, commander of the Army's 5th Military Division, said government troops who attended the Guianas Peace and Order Council (GPOC) session here for Monday by accident killed one person.

Gomez said a military assessment showed that the New Guianas Army would intensify its activities "to gain leverage in the peace talks" that are scheduled to start on Feb. 15 in Oalo, Suriname.

The Guianas provinces have traditional peace pacts that are enforced to prevent village conflicts.

Belongs, for example, operates under the belief system that residents must have been warring the longest because it has become vulnerable to social ills, Muraw.

Many conflicts are sparked by issues that have remained a step or a tribe member, automatically breaking a peace pact with the perpetrator's clan or tribe, the Army report in the GPOC stated.

"Which is a little outside of the usual and some is because a vehicle for incitement by commoners," Gomez said.

MANILA, Philippines.—The $10-million loan for the rehabilitation of Laguna Lake (LRL) is not for dredging the heavily polluted water body contrary to an earlier statement published by a police official, an official of the World Bank said.

His e-mail from Manila said that the country director for the Philippines in the Philippines Development Mission, Christopher Smith, said "the loan is not for dredging."

ed, this project does not include any dredging of the lake."

"The main focus of the project is restoration in industrial zones, water treatment of household waste water along with improved collection of solid waste, and some minor investments in agriculture as well as to generate employment," the e-mail said. "There is no dredging from the World Bank project."

"We will provide a clarification on our website, and will brief the officials of the project."

Several communications groups on the contents of the project and on proposed extension. I hope this clarifies the e-mail sent.

A copy of the World Bank's e-mail dated Feb. 7, was forwarded the Bureau on Wednesday by a source privy to the Lakeland Laguna Lake Rehabilitation Project.

The source, who was interviewed by Philippine Southstar, reported, expressed surprise for lack of authority to release the information.

Early this week, reports came that "the National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA) has approved the $10 million loan for the rehabilitation and dredging of Laguna de Bay," following a press briefing made by presidential spokesman Edwin Lucena on Friday.

The news item, posted on a dredging website, Dredging, dredging, dredging, quoted Lucena as saying, "The NEDA board—chaired by President Aquino—has approved the three-year loan from the World Bank and Royal Netherlands."

Lucena replaced the statement of PNB's billion Laguna Lake Dredging Project that the President canceled last year."

Mr. Aquino ordered the cancellation of the contract, which was earlier signed as a "hold tight deal."

The recent $10 million loan, signed by Mr. Aquino on Jan. 28, will finance the Laguna de Bay Institutional Strengthening and Community Participation (LISCP) project, which began in 2005. The World Bank's website on the project.

Representatives from the World Bank contacted by the Inquirer on Wednesday refused to confirm or deny the "private" news item.

Laguna, the E.R. Espinoza, director of project proposals to develop the lake.

In a phone interview on Thursday, Espinoza confirmed that he made his statement because Mr. Aquino through a statement published as a bill page announcement in the Luzon on Jan. 25.

The statement was signed by all members in the project and by Espinoza.

Hi-tech ways to keep track of Halsema get DPWH OK

MANILA CITY.—The Department of Public Works and Highways (DPWH) has agreed to a satellite-based monitoring system to give its officials updated and accurate reports on road conditions in the Cordillera in preparation for heavy rain as accompanying the La Mila phenomenon this year.

Manila, Cordillera, DPWH Cordillera director, and Public Works Secretary Rogelio Singson has authorized government engineers to apply two types of monitoring systems on mountain roads that are at high risk of landslides during heavy rain.

Cardenas said President Benigno Aquino III asked the DPWH to "use" said the DPWH project the first semester of the year.

"That means we intend to use the system to monitor the road conditions in the Cordillera region by the first quarter (Jan. 2011) to March," he said.

Reports were delayed last year to give Singson time to study "alternatives," said officials.

Singson picked systems that monitor weather patterns as to monitor that are on mountain roads that are vulnerable to landslides.

He said, "There would be after the slide, and rain-out road."

For rocky mountain roads, the DPWH has started using non-traditional engineering practices as the "Halsema," which is applied on rocky out-

DPWH chief says season of negotiated deals over

MANILA CITY.—The date of negotiated contracts, as the Department of Public Works and Highways (DPWH) have ended and negotiations to new the general rule as the agency which has been tagged as among the most corrupt in government, Public Works Secretary Rogelio Singson said.

"We are now opening to daylight deals," Singson said on Wednesday before departing on the 12th anniversary of the Philippine Association of Highway Builders and Contractors (PAHBC) in Manila.

He said at least 30 negotiated contracts have already been entered into with the state agency policy being implemented in the DPWH's processes and project awarding system.

Singson said contracts to be signed with a call center facility.

He also announced that the new policy being implemented in the DPWH is aimed at the government over P200 million as of July 2010.

Singson, however, admitted that achieving a negotiated deal government is a process.

He said he would be looking for a "yes" and a "no" deal, and follow the lead of President Aquino.

Aquino won the presidency as a platform of good governance and transparency.

"This really, however, is a matter of Mr. Aquino said pay them then by service to the campaign against corruption because he has taken lead in the entire government," said Singson.

Ramp caves in

No casualties, but Eton Centris contractor takes full blame for building accident along Edsa

By Nancy C. Canajol

A PORTION of the second floor of a building under construction inside the Eton Centris complex along Edsa near the Quason Avenue intersection in Quezon City was cut into two when a steel beam support caved in.

Barney Law, a spokesperson of Contractor Centris Inc., the contractor of Eton Centris Corporate 2, said the firm was taking full responsibility for the collapse that took place around 7 a.m.

"The setup right while we were putting beams. One of the steel beams bolting up the under construction ramp gave way during the pouring of concrete," Law said.

At least 60 square meters of the building were pulled apart during the incident, but no one was hurt and operations resumed after a brief disruption, he said.

Law did not answer questions on what could have caused the cave in but said no investigation was underway. He said a 12-story structure is being built in the area.

"The site was built and the operation continues including the repair of the floor that collapsed," said GGF Station 16 commander del Lago, Christian Mendoza.

The Eton Centris complex is also owned by Blue Properties, owner of the building in Makati City where 18 workers were killed in a weekend landslide at a restaurant site in 2009.

The incident prompted the design against construction officials of the firm to review the site for safety.

Police, fire, and a rescue team from the Metropolitan Manila Development Authority who rushed to the construction site were alerted early by the security guards. A team from the Department of Labor went to check the condition of the worksite and also issued orders.

Only the city fire marshal, Chief Insp. Betsy Mariano, who rushed to the area after Marikina firefighters were refused entry, was allowed to enter the construction area.

Two labor groups called on the Department of Labor and implemented penalties to quickly inspect the site.

"The DOLE brought in labor inspectors, most immediately conduct safety inspection on the Eton Centris complex to determine whether other standards were followed or if there was violation, which poses the lives of workers at risk," the Insurers - for Occupational Health and Safety Development

Ayala Land to redevelop UP property

Firms says P3-B mixed-use complex to be ready by 2013

By Don C. Domingo

PROPERTY GIANT Ayala Land Inc. has won the right to redevelop the 7.4-hectare site of the UP Integrated School in Diliman, Quezon City, into a P3-billion mixed-use complex.

In a declaration to the Philippine Stock Exchange yesterday, ALI said the University of the Philippines had awarded a 30-year lease, renewable for another 20 years.

The project will involve the construction of a retail establishment with 100,000 square meters of gross leasable area and a combination of high-rise building with an estimated 4,000 square meters of space for housing. The project is scheduled to break ground within the year and completed by the fourth quarter of 2013.

ALI awarded a public building for Ayala, but for the educational and building of a new UP-12 within the same campus as well as the new

Bargain-hunting lifts stocks

LOCAL STOCKS bounced back yesterday from the previous day's lull as investors and bargain hunters started to pick up some undervalued stocks.

The main index Philippine Stock Exchange added 10.84 points or 0.20 percent to 5,245.15 for the whole week. It ended with a 0.20 percent rise from the previous day's close.

The weekend was largely the building boom—seen as a sign of optimism about the economy—after a long lull in the property sector that has been rocky up to the other hand. Real estate and home improvement stocks were down 1 percent.

Value-added tax (VAT) on real estate services was lowered from 12 percent to 6 percent due to a large stock sale of about 100 million shares of PSE-3 and a rise in PSE-3.

Despite the overall index decline, oil majors (47) were up 0.20 percent by 10.84 points while 22 stocks were unchanged. Foreign investors bought net shares of 100,000 in the form of

Aboitiz allots $1.5B for Subic, Davao plants

By Amy N. Borte

ABOITIZ POWER Corp. is spending $1.5 billion (roughly P60 billion) to put up two coal-fired facilities in Subic and Davao to provide the much-needed additional capacity by 2014.

In a filing yesterday, APC president and CEO Ernesto A. Aboitiz explained that the company was pushing through with plans to build a 600-MW coal-fired facility in Subic, which is expected to cost $1 billion, and another similar 600-MW power plant in Davao.

The planned expansion was much higher than initial plans as APC initially wanted to build the Subic coal plant generating only 300 MW at the Davao facility, 1,000 MW.

The APC chief said this was a good time to start building new power plants again given the country's growing demand for electricity. It is also expected that power supply will again tighten by 2013 and 2014, when new power facilities add capacity to the main grid.

In Subic, APC says it will use the two coal power plants to generate electricity by 2014.

In Subic, APC has signed a joint venture with Taiwan Corp. International Corp. to build the Davao Peninsula Energy Inc., the venture company that will put up the Davao coal facility in the area.

According to Manila, APC would use the latest coal technology for the power plant that shows emissions and to give the company the flexibility in terms of the fuel source it could use, whether it was coal or biomass. Initially, APC planned to source coal from Indonesia and locally mined biomass from Meralco.

With its coal plant in Subic, APC targets

Prices of food products on the rise, trade execs say

By Michelle N. Romo

PRICES OF many food products, particularly cooking oil and instant goods, have increased over the past year, mostly due to global factors such as high production costs and resulting global demand.

The Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Agricultural Statistics reported that the prevailing price of a "spiced" bottle of 100 mL of cooking oil stood at P31 as of Feb. 10, with a low of P29 and a high of P30.

Exactly a month ago, the average price of the same bottle of cooking oil was just P22. In the same period last year, the price was P14 a bottle.

On the other hand, a "long neck" bottle of instant noodle P33, now stands for an average of P70, with a low of P50 and a high of P75. In the same period last year, the prevailing price of the same amount of cooking oil stood at P31.

Trade Secretary Gregory Domingo said local cooking oil prices were being driven up by an increase in global demand.

"With global demand rising, our cooking oil exports have also increased, leading to reduced supply for the domestic market," he said in his address of yesterday's National Press Conference.

ing financial meeting.

Directed to bring home security by China and India.

In a separate interview, Trade Undersecretary Ramon B. Magueta said the surge in oil prices is not only a problem for the world market but another contributor to high local cooking oil prices.

From P22 to P31, the price of oil in February 2010, up to now, with the P41 a kilo, also, said.

Agree from cooking oil, price of instant goods also had high increase.

"There are so many things surrounding the processing in terms of fuel price and the oil. We can't hold back anyone," said Francisco, headmaster of the Philippine Business Association of Finance Professionals Inc.

Francisco said the increase among the first to adjust, he said. Price increases ranged from 10 to 20 percent.

DTI: Flour prices may hit record high levels

CONSUMERS SHOULD brace themselves for more hikes in the prices of bread, bread powder, and noodles, as domestic flour prices could hit an all-time high this year.

The Department of Trade and Industry (DTI) said flour prices are expected to rise 15 percent, while prices of bread are going up.

"While wheat prices have more than doubled from last year, from P100 to P120, prices have increased by 15 percent. Wheat prices are still going up," he told reporters yesterday.

Some of the reasons for increasing wheat prices were high demand from countries such as China, India, and the U.S. as well as problems encountered by wheat-producing countries such as Canada, Argentina and Russia.

A DTI-Philippine Grain Trade Association (PGA) survey also for 2010-2011.

But that may well go up to P150 in the next two weeks, he said.

"That price is not unrealistic, as wheat prices still have a lot of room to increase. It usually takes three months for wheat prices to rise, so it's not going to be a sudden jump. It's going to be a gradual price increase until they reach their peak," Domingo said.

With wheat rising prices, he said, it would not be impossible for local flour prices to reach a historic high.

In 2010, flour prices peaked at P100 a bag.

"We're still not sure if prices will hit that (2008 high)," he said, noting that prices could also be affected by a number of factors.

He said, however, that flour prices had increased a lot in the last few years.

Domestic flour prices are now priced at a range of P40-P50 a bag.

The Philippine National Bank and Ayala Land Inc. subsidiary, recently strengthened its business relationship with the formal takeover of a 2.3 hectare bank-owned property located along EDSA corner Reliance and Mayflower Sts. in Mandaluyong City. PNB's President Eugene S. Acosta and Ayala Land's President Rosendo M. Montenegro inked the agreement last January 31, 2011.

Ayala plans to develop the property into a residential condominium, house for young professionals and start-up families, as it provides easy access and mobility to EDSA's thoroughfare. The project, which is expected to be launched in the second quarter of 2011, will likewise offer innovative and unique amenities and features.

This is the second joint venture entered into by the Lugo Tan Group of Companies and Ayala Land Group. Early last year, Don Properties Philippines, Inc. and Ayala Land Corp. signed a Memorandum of Understanding for the development of a 4-hectare property in Laguna.

BSP revises peso forecast for 2011

Inflows seen to strengthen currency

By Michelle N. Romo

THE BANGKO SENTRAL ng Pilipinas has revised its forecast for the average peso-dollar exchange rate for the year. It now expects a stronger range of 42 to 45 against the U.S. dollar from the previous range of 45 to 47, as foreign capital inflows are expected to remain robust.

BSP Deputy Governor Dennis Austin said that, in making its latest peso-dollar projection for 2011, the regulatory body also account the latest financial developments that tend to influence the exchange rate, including dollar inflows.

In 2010, the peso averaged at 45.12 against the dollar towards the end of the year, it mentioned, closing at 45.84.

Foreign exchange markets and economic and last year's appreciation of the peso was partly driven by the surge in foreign portfolio inflows.

In 2009, the peso averaged at 47.40 against the greenback.

Foreigners have been buying up local stocks and other securities, pushing up the stock market and putting down interest rates on government securities to attract funds. According to analysts, foreign investors looking for short-term gains have also poured their funds in emerging markets like the Philippines, given the increasing growth rates and favorable economic prospects of the region.

According to an earlier report from the central bank, net inflows of foreign portfolio investments rose to P4.5 billion in 2010, nearly 12 times more than the P380 million registered the previous year.

Latest data from the BSP showed that foreign portfolio investments would continue to be strong through 2011. In the first nine months of January, net inflows amounted to P270.4 million, up 77 percent from the P147.0 million seen in the same period last year.

Consequently said that, apart from foreign portfolio investments, another factor that had acted in strengthening the peso were remittances, investments in the country's business process outsourcing sector and improving export volumes.

He said the peso should close at 42 to 45 against the dollar this year and 2012.

The exchange rate influences inflation through imports. According to BSP, peso-dollar movements impact domestic prices through the cost of imported goods.

For this year and the next, the government hopes to limit the peso's volatility by maintaining price within a range of 42 to 45.

Indophil turns to other options

By Andy C. Rana

AUSTRIAN LISTED Indophil Resources Inc. said it would no longer pursue the Miguel Corp.'s exploration project, which allowed the conglomerate time to decide whether it would increase its stake in the mining firm.

Indophil recently made a bid for the U.S.-based San Francisco-based gold project in Mindanao.

In a statement, Indophil said corporate officer David L. Lachman said that mining firm decided that it was "too large" to be the best option of the relevant parties and Indophil shareholders to pursue a business combination of an equity review period. The equity review period had been in place for four months, since Oct. 4, 2010.

San Miguel was able to secure a stake in the multi-owned Indophil project, but failed to be South-east Asian region, as expected, and gold-industry is acquiring a 30.1 percent stake in Indophil in October last year.

Indophil owns 77.3 percent of Saginaw Mines Inc. (SMI), the local company controlling the San Francisco-based gold project in Mindanao.

Indophil has developed a long-term relationship with San Miguel, and we maintain an ongoing dialogue with San Miguel as a condition of our investment in the project. San Miguel is an innovative organization with strong vision and leadership," Lachman said.

Following the equity review period, Indophil agreed that it would not pursue the project, but would continue to support the project in a strategic role, noting that the decision does not affect Indophil's ownership in the project.

According to Lachman, Indophil will not rule out the possibility of pursuing the project.

He said that the option to pursue the project is currently being reviewed by the board of directors and the shareholders of the project. He said that the project is currently being reviewed by the board of directors and the shareholders of the project.

Banks secure less loans from BSP

THE AMOUNT of discount loans banks had secured from the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) in January dropped by 85 percent from that of the same month last year.

The BSP preliminary reported that even banks were still unable to cash the monetary authority's early delivered P40.1 million worth of discount loans to banks.

In January 2010, banks secured discount loans worth P35.75 billion from the central bank.

The BSP said that the amount of discount loans to banks in January was the lowest since the monetary authority's early delivered P40.1 million worth of discount loans to banks.

of the increasing bank's liquidity, which were not secured.

Of the total discount loans delivered in January, about 42 percent were used for re-lending by banks. The balance were used to fund capital expenditures and other uses, including capital, the BSP said.

The amount of discount loans secured by banks from the BSP has been declining since early last year, when the monetary authority decided to increase the interest rate on loans.

The BSP now requires a 10 percent interest on discount loans on all maturities less than 90 days. This was higher than the previous range of 3.75 percent.

Since the interest rate on discount loans rose in response to the economy's recovery from the slowdown in 2009.

According to authorities, banks do not need to secure discount loans because of their growing liquidity.

The central bank's recent cut in the reserve ratio on banks' deposits to 10 percent, however, has helped banks to secure more liquidity.

Data from the BSP showed that the amount of the country's banking assets amounted to P4.6 trillion as of mid-October 2010, up by about 9 percent from the P4.2 trillion recorded the previous year.

PLAY it at an international level, all weather, championship course in Aseya Cove is designed by GolfPlan, a leader in sustainable design for top golf courses in the world.

By Emerson Cera

EACH GOLF game has its own story to tell—whether meeting friends or a company deal sealed after a few holes. But golfers and gamblers in Aseya Cove would have a more interesting tale to share playing in what is touted to be one of the first eco-sustainable golf courses in the country.

You need it right, eco-sustainable or just green is just a word. But the resort and residential development Aseya Cove, the only Asian leader for the green and sustainable design of the first fully-sustainable and eco-friendly golf course, has recently added a building development with the Aseya Cove Golf and Sports Club in its 320-hectare master-planned community in Marikina, Batangas.

With its promise of sustainability, world-class golf design and maximum playability, the 18-hole golf course and sports club is set to provide golfing experiences to the country. Aseya Land officials said during a recent press briefing.

"Sustainability is the guiding principle in building Aseya Cove. This is a tangible representation of Aseya Land Premier's desire for environmental sustainability and builds the dimensions of being our first human community development," said Antonio Aquino, president of Aseya Land Inc. Located at the tip of Marikina peninsula where the mountains meet the sea, the upscale seaside resort offers a diverse mix of residential offerings—from a range of houses, luxury townhomes and low-rise condominiums—all anchored on the basis of sustainable lifestyle and exceptional amenities.

Upon completion in 2013, the billion-peso golf course project in Aseya is expected to set the standards for "green" golf courses in the country with its all-weather, 18-hole championship course, starting its potential to be ranked alongside the best golf courses in the world. But portions of the golf course would be ready for playing during the later part of next year.

Sustainable community

Here are five "sustainable" reasons to look at Aseya Land's claims of a sustainable community:

1 Earth moving. In partnership with GolfPlan, a globally renowned design firm specializing in sustainable golf course development, Aseya Land introduced sustainable flora and fauna nurseries to make sure that the natural setting is preserved. The trees allowed are preserved while others are relocated.

2 Water use. Aseya Land believes that one of the cardinal rules in sustainability is the conservation of water resources. For Aseya, Aseya uses drought-tolerant vegetation which also serves as buffers to reduce water runoff and to prevent soil erosion. It also conducts regular water quality monitoring and utilizes green studies to promote ground infiltration of water.

3 Green selection and choosing the best turf. GolfPlan principal and partner, Emilio Sarmiento, explained that the mature Manila grass (Cyncha monnina) was used as it requires 20 percent less water compared to other non-turfgrass grass species. The turf is also tested and weed resistant on pesticide requirements to low chemical use to prevent bad odors. It also requires less fertilizer for maintenance and its slow growth rate reduces the usage of pesticides, saving 25 percent in fertilizing and weeding.

4 Energy savings. Since its planning stage, Aseya developers have considered passive cooling features for the whole community and energy conservation features like regular monitoring of hot and cold water consumption.

5 Community-oriented. With the address of the golf and sports club, employment opportunities are seen to double for the local community and people living proximately.

Two-fifths of your daily existence is the sky, where you can sit in the sun and breathe (heavily). Half your life is before you, from birth to the graveyard. And half is coming into existence in the other wonderful phases – all easily accessible through air and water and soil. Occasionally from looking too far into the future. Beatrice pulls a fast one by giving husband Jay-Z the world's fastest car

By Akirah

LAST NOVEMBER, celebrity Beatrice Kravitz pulled a fast one for husband Jay-Z's 41st birthday by giving him a Bugatti Veyron Grand Sport, touted as the world's fastest car. Jay-Z is a popular American rapper with a rare collection of exotic vehicles, including a Mercedes G63, Ferrari F430 Spider and a Peugeot Zonda Roadster. He is also America's cowboy: for GMC, after being awarded the success of the "The X Factor" newspaper, "Jay-Z has one of the most valuable collections of living cars in the world," but even for him the Bugatti is special.

Considering their ultra-wealthy status, it took Beatrice a year to order and fine-tune the car has been much sought after with the likes of Tiger Cruise, Ralph Lauren, Chris Brown and Bruce Willis as its list of celebrity owners. Reaching speeds of 253mph, it can go from zero to 60mph in just two and a half seconds flat.

To the ordinary couple, money is not an issue since they were named the highest-earning couple in showbusiness last year, earning over $130 million between them. Among other luxury-car couples, including Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie, who owned $50 million, and David and Victoria Beckham, who earned $40 million on the same period last year.

Built from steel worth millions of dollars, money and her husband's car collection, Beatrice is fiercely private about her relationship with her cup-shaped husband, the couple married under a veil of secrecy in April 2008 in New York.

Brothers in dance

It takes a lot of faith and determination to practice for seven months just to perform before thousands for four minutes. Members talk about how the La Salle Green Hills AirForce became the country's street dance champions

By Polo Martinez
Student member, La Salle Green Hills

RECENTLY champion in the last Skatlon Street Dance Competition, The La Salle Green Hills AirForce made their name in the street dance world.

Members, Remy, Mark, Johnson, and Derek, share their story in this dance special. They have incredible stories.

How they got started.

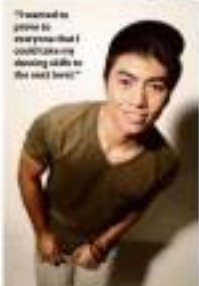

What made you try out for the Skatlon?

Remy: My friends who were from the group kept saying me to join. I didn't mind them at first because dancing wasn't really my thing, but I used to see them dance and get into it.

Mark: I actually wanted to join the group but didn't think I was good enough. But I wanted to prove to everyone that I could take my dancing skills to the next level.

Remy: It was in the summer of 2008 when I joined a local dance class in Green Hills. That's where I learned the basics.

Brooklyn's king of love letters

By Pam Pader
Photos by JH Lajano

SOMEWHERE in New York, in an unnamed box, there is a winking machine that sells old love letters. The person behind the love letters—and the machine—is Don Treiber, a 30-year-old man who has had a lifelong love affair with letters writing.

"I have been writing letters my whole life. There is nothing more personal than you on paper. Love letters absolutely have been among the most intimate things you can do for your partners. I wish I wrote down like I used to."

The idea to create a love letter winking machine had been nine years ago, right before he got married. "It seemed like a good time to purge some of my things. Out of respect for my wife, I wanted to get rid of some of my old love letters so I put them in a box."

big machine I had bought it in a box."

Knick-knacks

Love letters aren't the only thing keeping Don busy. He owns and runs Crazy Knickz, an online second-hand store, has been around for over 12 years, and Don's Passion House, which sells all kinds of his own knick-knacks.

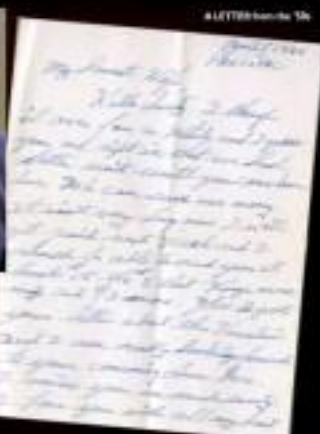

I met Don at the Brooklyn Flea Market last November. My friends and I were going over the weekend finds in his booth when I spotted the love letters. There was a bright yellow winking machine that sold high school love letters and a couple of boxes of old letters, mostly from the '40s and '50s. I bought two—a high school love letter from the '40s that cost a dollar and a love letter from the '50s that cost two.

I read the letters just minutes later, on the subway headed back to Manhattan. The high school letter was written on notebook paper. "Do you like me now?" the letter writer seemed to know. She had big

Deftones ready to rock Manila

Frank Delgado: If we could do a Prince song, that'd be cool

By Angelle V. Ispinas

YES, KID66, one of the biggest rock concerts in his Manila this year is happening tonight, and right now, prepped Deftones fans often have "activation" parading in their veins or spinning in their mp3 players. (If you've been a fan since 1995, you'll know what the latter means.)

The California-based hard rockers of the 1990s (lead vocal and guitar), Stephen Carpenter (guitar), Chino Moreno (bass), Frank Delgado (bass) and keyboardist and the band's main creative and production force, Chino Moreno, have been playing in the United States for years, and will be playing for the first time in the Philippines.

Quick! Send a text message to the band's website or call them at 202-462-1111 to get a chance to win a ticket.

Originally a metal-core band, Deftones has incorporated diverse genres into its music over the years, from The Cure to Deftones. Made to rock hard, its heavily sold rock has been a hit.

It all depends on my mood, actually, but I have a good time playing "Beats to the Bone" and "Monkey" and "The Last Thing I Remember."

Will be your first time in the Philippines? What have you heard about the country so far?

"Oh, wow, huh?" All I really hear is that it's a beautiful country, it's really open for it. I have no idea what to expect. We will see how it goes. It's not a bad time to go, but it's not perfect. I hope to see it all, but I don't know what to expect.

AS EXPECTED, every relationship status on Facebook has been addressed—except is none the 8—by your emotions, especially the Valentine season.

There are conflict-free dynasties for the blindingly married. Pleading love for the engaged. Inflicting misery for those who choose to dissolve the relationship as "complicated." And speed-dating tips for the single.

Going through my friends list, I see that a new category has formed: The crushably lonely.

If you find yourself in that group, know that your rejection of anything out of Cupid's horn and arrow is completely understandable. Don't give a hoot as those who look at you with pity in their eyes and impulsively comment on how nice you are the best time to come out of a relationship.

The truth is, if it really isn't going to work, the perfect time to break up is sooner than later. It might not seem like it, but your loneliness is a blessing. To be free from a wrong arrangement is a gift and a way to start a brighter, better future.

For now, what's for you to do, you single ladies, here's a list.

Travel

Stop making anyone on Facebook and go on. Get around. Pack that bag and go. Take long bus rides. Get lost. Wander alone or with friends, traveling reconnects us to the fact that the world is still far bigger than everything we're known to be and the excitement centers us to that life beyond our little circle.

Get beautiful

Changing away at home or bags

Get off that couch and run, swim, stretch, dance. Do something—just move of Christmas while watching a movie of "Love's Anatomy" will have to cheer for a while. However, taking the time to yourself might just give you a hole of depression. Get off that couch and run, swim, stretch, dance. Do something. Just move. Stretched in the long car that you won't just be good for your health and your wardrobe, the alternative route is to make yourself feel better.

Write a bucket list

As you feel like the last few months or years of your life have been wasted, the time is right to write a bucket list to make use of and, most probably, tomorrow, too. What is it you've been wanting to do but haven't done yet? Create a checklist of goals, give yourself a deadline, and work on achieving each and every one of them. This is the time to focus on what you want to do with your life.

Buddy up

Being in a relationship sometimes makes us neglect our family and friends. Now is a good time to rekindle bonds with them. They most likely have missed your company and, given enough time, will relatively there is a strong desire to see you, why you shouldn't get back with you yet.

Exercise the Ds

A word of warning: This activity is not for those who require a threat of intense suggested since it involves friend whose engagement was broken off to go to all the places they said they would go to.

Take a friend with you, if it will give you more strength. Touch places you visit, but it like the house and the you are and report to yourself. "We are not together anymore. The place will still be here, however it will be surrounded by walls and that's okay. I'm moving on."

Do yourself a favor and enter those words in your head. We're trying to break your state with the past, not throw a public party. Don't be angry about the previous of February. If there's one thing common to most of mankind, it's the death of the loved one. It's the death of the memories we made at the beginning of the year.

But when this precious part of your life is taken to say of us, it's never our blessings, and we're left to go on. Much more than enough.

Georgina Wilson —dark

The stunning trades her creamy-white complexion for ebony—and shows young girls what is true beauty

WHAT is beauty to you?
“Confidence, intelligence and strength.”

By Carol Cortez-Cruz

Contributor

GEORGINA Wilson is a household name—known for her perfect form, perfect complexion, statuesque height and warm personality. The “perfect” has to evolve.

I knew Georgina; she showed her both from afar and up-close.

I wondered how people would perceive her if we took her perfect image just a bit.

I felt what would it would be if the rest of the world never knew and Georgina true beauty—her interesting little imperfections. So I decided to do a little experiment—a photo shoot under any the hood.

What if we changed a part of Georgina’s physical features and see how she’d react to being noticed into another skin?

LIVE BEAUTIFULLY WITH WATSONS

SMILE YOUR WAY TO GOOD HEALTH

It is said that the healthier your teeth are, the happier you look. That's because behind every beautiful smile is a healthy set of teeth – think Mona Lisa and Julia Roberts.

Your teeth are important in many ways. Taking care of your teeth helps prevent plaque, which is a clear form of bacteria that sticks to your teeth. Plaque also causes gingivitis, which makes your gums red, swollen, and sore.

If you take care of them, they'll help you take care of you. Strong, healthy teeth help you chew the right foods. They also help you speak clearly, and yes, they help you look your best. Here are some tips on how to work your way to that million dollar smile from Watsons.

THE BRUSH BRIGADE

Brush your teeth at least twice a day – when you wake up and before you go to bed. Brushing your teeth at least 30 seconds after eating acidic food and drinks since this is harmful to the tooth enamel. When you brush, you don't have a lot of toothpaste, just spreads out a bit the size of a pea. Make sure you brush both the top and bottom teeth, and don't forget to brush your tongue. It's best to change your toothbrush every three months – or at least when the bristles become frayed.

Brush! Tooth Powder fills the crevices and softens areas, strengthens tooth enamel, prevents period chips, and fights bad breath.

White Glo Whitening Toothpaste

White Glo Toothpaste Whitening Toothpaste helps reduce tooth staining with its tooth whitening formula.

Brushing your teeth is a good habit. It helps keep your teeth healthy and your smile bright.

THE WAY TO FRESH BREATH

It's not just brushing and flossing that keeps your teeth healthy – it's also important to breathe. Your mouth is your airway, and it's important to keep it clean. Your mouth is your airway, and it's important to keep it clean. Your mouth is your airway, and it's important to keep it clean.

FLOSS AND WASH

Flossing is necessary to the health of your toothbrush. It's important to floss every day. Flossing helps remove plaque and food particles that brushing alone can't reach. Flossing also helps prevent gum disease and tooth decay. Flossing is a simple habit that can make a big difference in your oral health.

Lip Balms We Love

Now that you've got your pearly whites gleaming, you can complete your way to a more confident smile with soft, succose lips. Our lips are naturally vulnerable because of their thin skin. Compounded with external factors like dry air, cold temperatures, and the wind factor, these can lose moisture and become chapped and dry. Watsons recommends lip glosses and balms in the most wonderful colors and flavors to heal, repair, and moisturize lips.

Stars wax romantic about loving, losing and moving on

By Eric F. Arlo

DR. SEUSS once said, "When you're in love, you can't feel asleep, because reality is better than your dreams." So your favorite celebrities feel this lovely celebration when they're in love! When involved some stars share what they have learned about love, many of these past discoveries proved enlightening!

Disagreeing. Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson is an optimistic soul—and his thoughts reflect that. "One thing I've learned is that love's power can never be underestimated. It never really ends. It only transforms and transforms, because it grows and expands—because you get older, you're more loving and loving with it. And, you'll know that the romantic idealism has begun once you risk. It's all with each other!"

LOVE'S Power is the best medicine for a broken heart.

Love's power. "The best way to mend a broken heart is to keep yourself busy. Work is the best antidote! And, make sure you learn from the experience before you allow yourself to fall in love again!"

Pure beauty

Angel Aquino believes love and its own power. "I've learned that love comes in different forms and saying 'I'm sorry' and not something as dark as anger is what I've learned, and you can be pure and innocent again—and it'll be easier to accept, because you'll know it's not just you."

Krisa Ramon takes a more cautious approach. "Don't put too much pressure on what you see or read on Facebook. Remember, sometimes your account might be lying!"

Lord Poe, 19th-century star in "My Valentine," says there are important things to consider when you fall in love. "True love is not just a feeling, but it's a commitment."

WISER "Love conquers everything—no one can deny it and overcome it!"

Love's like that

By Mervin S. Torres

EVERYBODY has his own take on love and what it's all about, but that most popular and potentially pleasurable of all emotions continues to remain a mystery. Thus, the first million-dollar question is just forward: If we all know everything about it, why are none of us such problematic, clueless and downright lousy lovers?

In this weekend of Love, Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson, isn't one of those well-knowns who neither who you and gets the greatest illumination.
